Teacher Appreciation

By: Rylee Culver

The Tireless Teacher award for November is Mr. Boddy! Mr. Boddy has been recognized by students as a teacher who is very level-headed and respectful to his students, which is greatly appreciated by his students. He makes class interesting with cool videos and subjects. Mr. Boddy's tireless efforts toward our education are being recognized by the Tireless Teacher Tire that will be in his room until we nominate a new Tireless Teacher for the month of December. Congratulations on the award, Mr. Boddy, and we're all wishing you happiness with your new marriage!

Student Advice

How Do I Go About Asking the Girl I Like To Homecoming?

Edited by: Aven Winn

With Homecoming right around the corner, many people are wondering what they can do to get a girl to agree to going with them. Girls are not really that hard to please. Though girls seem like they want a big gesture, they really do not. All they really want to be asked in a meaningful way. An example of a few meaningful ways to ask her is taking her to where you guys first met and asking her there or doing it in front of her family and friends. If you really want to make a big gesture and catch her attention there are also many ways to go about that. One thing you could do is make a sign and ask her in the hall at her locker or in a classroom in front of the class. You can always send her random notes and send her on a scavenger hunt during the school day to find the words "will you go to homecoming with me," or find out her class schedule and give each teacher a note to give to her before class begins. To do some of the big gestures someone would need to get permission from a teacher or the principal at school, surely if asked, they would think it was a sweet gesture and allow it. Remember, you do not always have to go all out to get her to agree, simply asking her could get you an answer.

Are you a student in need of advice from one of our chief editors? Perhaps you have concerns about family, relationships, or school that only another student would understand. It can be simple things like, "How should I go about telling a person I like them?" "How do I get my grades to be better this year than they were last year?" "What is the best way to organize my homework schedule?," or "How can I be a less-stressed student?" If you would be interested in getting advice from a fellow schoolmate, click the link below and submit your question. Our staff will try to help in the best way possible and respond to the coming issue of the Cardinal Newsletter!

NOTE: Only student email accounts can submit responses. personal accounts will not be able to access the link.  <https://forms.office.com/r/DscxcanJhd>

In Memory of Junior Ramage

Alfred Grady Ramage Jr. was a beloved member of the staff at Livingston Central High School for thirteen years. Junior was much more than a member of the custodial staff at LCHS. Junior was a mentor, a teacher, a parental figure, and a friend. Junior was known best by those closest to him for his selfless nature, often putting the needs of others above his own well-being. He made it his mission to make those around him laugh. Junior held a deep admiration for his family. Junior was a beloved member of LCHS and he will be missed deeply.

Tornado Relief

By: Calista Jennings

Edited By: Michelle Adams

As most of you know, our community has suffered a big loss. Many people have lost their life, family members, pets, friends, and belongings due to the tornado on the night of December 10th. Our school has banded together by collecting items for those in need. We are collecting winter jackets (new or used), sweatshirts, non-perishable food items, blankets, and any resource that could come in handy in this time of need! Anything that can help these victims would be greatly appreciated! Remember this is not a competition, this is just lending a hand to our surrounding communities.

Before Christmas Break Activities

By: Dacey Reasons

Edited By: Michelle Adams

On December 17th there will be a day jam packed full of different activities. There will be a pep rally to celebrate winter sports, house competitions, dress-up contests, and a movie with popcorn. We sure look forward to seeing everyone's faces there! We hope that you have fun!

Livingston Central HOSA hosted an event after school on December 16th. The event was for all HOSA members. Students stayed after school with Ms. Gamble until the game. During the time there was a quick HOSA club meeting, then the movie "Five Feet Apart," was watched and all students enjoyed popcorn. Students were encouraged to stay for the game. Those who stayed for the game received HOSA points for themselves and their team! There was additional information about this on club day last Friday! If you missed these announcements or have any questions, contact Ms. Gamble.

Pals Christmas tree

By: Calista Jennings

Edited By: Michelle Adams

Our Pals made special ornaments that were placed on the Christmas tree. If you would like more information on this wonderful idea, please see Mrs. Milby! We would love to see participation throughout our school in this joyful time!

Sports

On November 29th, our basketball boys had their first game of the season where they played Hickman County. The JV team won their game and unfortunately the Varsity did not but there is always next time! The very next day, November 30th, we hosted the first home game of the basketball season. This was a Varsity girls' and boys' game and we played Hopkinsville. On Friday December 3rd, our Livingston Central boys' and girls' varsity teams took on their rivals. In their second home game they played against the Crittendon County Rockets. Here are the games that are to be played in the next two weeks leading up to and including Christmas break.
